The SENIOR and JUNIOR CLASSES of TUBMAN HIGH SCHOOL

Forsan et haec olim meminisse invabit-Vergil.

That this little book may help us to recall those memories, some bitter, some sweet, with which our high school days were filled, is the wish of the annual staff of 1930.

The End

(With apologies to A. A. Milne)

When I was a freshman I'd just begun

When I was a Sophomore I thought I knew more

When I was a Junior I was smart as could be

But now I'm a Senior I am clever as clever— I think I'll be one forever 'n' ever.

A Poem

~@J

Half-way betwixt heaven and earth
With only the blue o'er head.
Aurora, the mother of Mirth.
Was unfolding the curtains of red.

Beneath, the shining waters blue.

Made placid by Neptune's hand.
Rivaling heaven's own hue,

Were beating upon the sand.

From afar she viewed the lofty trees.

Magnificent children of old Sylvanus.

Crooning a melody on each breeze

Were upholding their arms to Olympus.

The fields were lovely under Ceres' care:
Sheets of waving golden grain
Presented a picture of beauty rare
Thriving from the plentiful rain.

Here a band with voices loud
Singing and dancing in joyous glee
Had gladly left the city's crowd
To enjoy the quiet of the flowered lea.

Now the tranquil day is o'er
And Aurora filled with contentment deep
Begins night's shades to lo'er
Then on each thing falls the veil of sleep.

The Last Will and Testament of the Class of 1930

HE class of 1930 is in a very critical condition, in fact if it survives the next few weeks it may have a chance of recovery. A consultation with the faculty, whose ability in such cases is exceptional, was held May 28 and a diagnosis of the case was made. The physicians agreed that the crisis would be reached Thursday, June 12.

The disease is very complicated—nervous prostration due to overstudy, cramming, worry over low grades and exams—heaviness of the heart at thoughts of parting and physical breakdown caused by stampedes subjected to during lunch hour—excessive swelling of head (with corresponding shrinking of brain) which has been gradually increasing during the last four years and has now reached the most perilous stage.

Mindful of her condition she has drawn up this will in order to prevent any squabbling over her worldly goods.

WILL

We, the 1930 Senior Class of Tubman High School, Augusta, Georgia, do hereby publish this, our last will and testament revoking and making void all former wills made by us at any time.

I. We do direct that our funeral be held by our friends and well-wishers—oh, yes! and the faculty.—and shall be held with fitting pomp and ceremony. With the experienced Sarah Zealy and T. Harry as chief mourners.

II. To Father T(ime), our beloved principal, we do give and bequeath some much needed tact—s.

To the faculty we do bequeath peaceful nights and restful days—until they return to the madhouse in September.

To the Jolly Juniors we do give and bequeath our pet lizards, snakes and frogs: also our notes containing vast stores of information on all subjects.

To the Sophomores we give our advice which will keep their heads from swelling on account of Junior dignity and help them to bear exams and failure manfully.

To the Freshmen we leave whatever the Juniors and Sophomores throw away including all Planters empty peanut bags, ten of which sent to the Planters Company. Wilkes-Barre. Pa., will entitle them to a beautiful thirty-two page painting book.

To the June Seniors of 1931 we do leave our accustomed seat in Chapel, which they have so long coveted.

And we hereby constitute and appoint Miss Gertrude Comey (our legal advisor during these trying four years) sole executor of this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof, we, the class of 1930, the testators, have to this will set our hand and seal this day. May 19, Anno Domini one thousand nine hundred and thirty.

Prophecy of The Senior Class of 1930

May 15, 1950.

DEAR MAUDIE MAE:

It seems a shame that you. President of the June, 1930, Class, were unable to attend our twentieth reunion, but 1 realize how busy you have been since the United States joined the League of Nations. How do you like representing good old Uncle Sam over there? I know you must enjoy it as you used to love to study about it in Miss Wiese's History Class at Tubman.

Speaking of Miss Wiese, she was at the reunion and you should have seen her. Fat!—that doesn't begin to describe it, but then she's married now and living a life of leisure. Several of the other teachers were there also; Elizabeth Henry and Annie Bee Daniels, both old and grey as would be expected. But enough—I know you are anxious to hear about some of the old crowd.

Well, the first day we met at Tubman, our old one on Walton Way, and spent several hours getting acquainted again. We were then taken on a tour of the city. At one o'clock we were taken to the Bon Air where the Rotary Club entertained us with a luncheon. I haven't enjoyed anything as much since the last one twenty years ago. On my left was Estelle Wagnon; she is studying the care and feeding of gold fish at Agnes Scott, as she thinks it will aid her when she goes to house-keeping in the fall. Ann Willis, now the business manager of the peanut stand at the corner of Seventh and Broad, sat on my right. Next to Ann were Isabel Plunkett and Mattie Lou Grimaud, President and Vice-President of the stand; they say they employed Ann because of her experience as advertising manager of the 1930 Annual. I also saw Clara Verdery, Eleanor Miller, Agnes Halford, Mary Dennis, and Eleanor Bearden who are doing charity work in Augusta.

That afternoon we saw Mary Creed who just received Lon Chaney's place in the movies. Her first picture was "Whoopee, the War's Over." A most entertaining production, I assure you. After it we returned to the hotel to rest and talk. Naturally some of the girls beside yourself were unable to come, but Sarah Doughty, who, by the way, has been made editor of The College Humor, told me about some of them. Sarah says that she owes all she is to the Tubman Annual of 1930. But back to the missing girls—Alice Patche was unable to get down to the reunion as she is a fashion model in a New York store. Sarah said not to tell anyone, but Alice is hoping this will be her last position before going on the stage. Mary Stone and Ruth Williams have gone to Arabia in hopes of finding two wandering sheiks; imagine them on camels. Sarah Mallard, Llewellyn Gibson, and Mary Haggerty are now police-women in Chicago and as yet are in perfect health.

In the evening we had dinner at the hotel and afterwards in the ballroom we looked in on the television. Maudie, you couldn't guess who we heard, and saw, broadcasting—Marjorie Holland, A. Woods Devereaux, Frances Garten and Ophelia Ponder, the famous quartette, sang several numbers, among them "Over the Hills and Far Away." Eleanor Binus and Hilda Nelson announced for station I. O. U. They gained their wonderful speaking voices by making chapel announcements of "Very Important Meetings." We also heard two lectures by former Tubmanites, one by Mary Southall on where the "Tower of London" is located. The other by Irene Weatherson the South Sea Island dress was extremely interesting, as Irene has just returned from Iceland.

Speaking of lectures, do you remember when Mr. Hardy came to Tubman and wanted some of us charming young ladies to go on a Washington tour? Well, Lucille Lamb has just completed her thirteenth trip around the Chinese Wall. She will start on the fourteenth one next year and wants all people who are interested in the tour to call her home—178-J.

Just as we were about to turn the television off dainty Doris Wolfe was seen dancing the tango. After watching her for a few mnintes we went up to our rooms.

The next day we were entertained with a big party at the new Angusta Pond by Mildred Lorick and Anne Robertson, both charming members of the younger married set, as would be expected. At luncheon I talked to Amelia Sheftall, now gym teacher at Tubman.

In the afternoon we heard a very educational debate by Carolyn Sancken and Louise Thomas on "Should Teachers Who Object to Noise Be Barred from the Schools?" I also saw another girl who is teaching at Tubman now. Katie Evans is velling "Don't look at your typewriter keys." to all the little Junior C's.

That evening I was forced to catch the plane back to New York, as my new 5-and-10 mail order house was to open the next day.

I must close now, as it is late.

I hope we can have another reunion again some day and that you will be able to attend it as they certainly are fun.

Love.

Дот

P. S.—The girls all sent their love and best wishes.

D. S.

"HALFWAY DOWN"

"Halfway down the stairs
Is a stair
Where I sit.
There isn't any
Other stair
Quite like
It.

I'm not at the bottom, I'm not at the top; So this is the stair

Where I always Stop."

I wonder what A. A. Milne would say, if he knew that I was using the title, and was quoting part of one of his poems? Plenty, probably, if he read this theme, but he won't read it. Maybe, if I had told him that I was planning on using this work of his, he would have written three things differently.

"Mr. Milne." I would say, when somebody introduced us, "do you remember that poem you wrete called "Halfway Down"? You do? Well, would you change the title to "Seven Steps Down"?

"Why?" he would ask.

"Because," I would reply, "when I go downstairs, I stop on the seventh step."

"Very well." Milne would answer, writing it down on a slip of paper. "Is there anything else I should change?"

"Yes," I would declare, "will you use 'stand' instead of to 'sit'?"

"What line is 'sit' in?" A. A. would question, trying to be polite. "Never mind, I see it. Let's see. If I change 'sit' to 'stand' what will 'it' rhyme with?"

"Oh, change 'it' to 'and'." would come my bright respond.

"Let's see," that is his favorite expression. "Now my poem reads:

"Seven steps down the stairs Is a stair Where I stand. There isn't any Cther stair Quite like And.

"No. That doesn't make sense? May I use 'pause' instead of 'stand'?"

"All right." the words would come out of my mouth without my knowing it.

"Here! How is this?" and now he would recite:

"Seven steps down the stairs Is a stair Where I pause There isn't any Cther stair Like it 'Cause;"

"Fine! grand! excellent!" I would exclaim. "Now, could you—I mean—would you change 'always' in the next to last line, to 'sometimes'?"

"Of course," the famous child's poet and mystery murder writer would mutter. "Now my poem is all right, isn't it?" His voice betrays his doubt.

"Well!" I would utter. "Well. we haven't started on the second verse yet."

"Just a minute." he would cry, as if someone had called him, "I'm coming." Then, turning toward me, in the humblest of voices, he would beg me to come again. "Christopher just called me and I can't keep him waiting. Goodbye!" A. A. Milne would cry disappearing through the doorway, almost at a run.

FOR THOSE WHO LOVE FINE THINGS

A NEW ELEMENT—WOMAN

SYMBOL-WO

A member of the human family.

OCCURRENCE—Can be found wherever man exists. Seldom occurs free or in native state. Quality depends on the state in which it is found.

Usually the combined state is preferred.

PHYSICAL PROPERTIES—All colors and sizes always appears in disguised condition and its face is usually protected by powder and paints. Boils at nothing and freezes at any time. If not used correctly, it is bitter. Will melt if properly treated.

CHEMICAL PROPERTIES—Extremely active. Has a great affinity for gold, silver, platinum, and precious stones. Absorbs all expensive foods. Sometimes yields to pressure. Ages rapidly, fresh varieties are more attractive. It is a very dangerous element and highly explosive. Therefore, it should not be handled by inexperienced hands.

Pat was visiting the house of a friend who was the proud owner of a parrot. Pat had never seen one before.

"Hello!" exclaimed the bird as the visitor walked past the cage.

Pal turned in amazement and after staring at the parrot for a moment, raised his cap in salute.

"Good morning to yez," he said politely. "Sure, at first I thought yez was a bird."

They call her appendix because somebody is always taking her out.

When caught robbing the cash-register in a fish store, he nonchalant, smoke a herring.

Mr. Montell: Frances, how do you look best, smiling or serious?" Frances—very unconcerned: "Either way."

WHEN HISTORY WAS YOUNG

Miss Wiese: Melba, do you mean to say that you can't name all the presidents we have had? When I was your age I could name them all.

Melba: Yes, but there were only three or four then.

Some girls with a negative personality may be developed in a dark room.

An Irishman was telling his friend of a narrow escape in the war. "The bullet went in me chest and came out me back," said Pat.

"But," answered his friend, "it would go through your heart and kill you."

"Me heart was in me mouth at the time," came the quick reply.

Comey: "If Shakespeare were alive today, wouldn't he be looked upon as a remarkable man?"

R. Williams: "I'll say so. He would be three hundred years old."

Passerby: "What would your mother say, little boy, if she could hear you swear like that?"

Boy: "She'd be tickled to death if she could hear it."

Passerby: "How can you lie like that?" Boy: "That's no lie. She's stone deaf."
